

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't look old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, lifeless hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

More Sense Than Poetry

My friend, have you heard of the town of Yawn

On the banks of the river Slow,

Where blooms the Waitawhile flower fair,

Where the Sometimeorother scents the air

And the soft Goeasys grow?

It lies in the valley of Whatstheuse,

In the province of Letherslide;

That tired feeling is native there—

It's the home of the listless Idont-care,

Where the Puttloffs abide.

The Puttloffs never make up their minds,

Intending to do it to morrow;

And so they delay from day to day

Till business dwindles and profits decay

And their days are full of sorrow.

Constable—Your honor, I've arrested Pat McGinnis for allowing his goat to sleep on the high school porch every night.

Magistrate—With what did you charge him?

Constable—Kidnapping.

Mrs. Ayres—Oh, John, I've just learned that on the night of our party there's to be an eclipse of the moon.

Mr. Ayres—Good. We'll be able to get along without that high priced fiddler.

"I don't know about one thing."

"What is that?"

"How can an army that is worth its salt have running expenses?"

Disarmament

(By John G. Whittier)

"Put up the sword!" The voice of Christ once more

Speaks, in the pauses of the cannon's roar,

O'er fields of corn by fiery sickles reaped

And left dry ashes; over the trenches heaped

With nameless dead; o'er cities starving slow

Under a rain of fire; through wards of woe

Down which a groaning diapason runs

From tortured brothers, husbands, lovers, sons

Of desolate women in their far-off homes,

Waiting to hear the step that never comes!

O men and brothers! let that voice be heard,

War fails, try peace; put up the useless sword!

Fear not the end. There is a story told

In Eastern tents, when autumn nights grow cold,

And round the fire the Mongol shepherds sit

With grave responses listening unto it;

Once, on the errands of his mercy bent,

Buddha, the holy and benevolent,

Met a fell monster, huge and fierce to look,

Whose awful voice the hills and forests shook.

"O son of peace!" the giant cried, "thy fate

Is sealed at last, and love shall yield to hate."

The unarmed Buddha looking, with no trace

Of fear or anger, in the monster's face

In pity said: "Poor friend, even thee I love."

Lo! as he spake the sky-tall terror sank

To hand-breadth size; the huge abhorrence shrank

Into the form and fashion of a dove;

And where the thunder of its rage was heard,

Circling above him sweetly sang the bird:

"Hate hath no harm for love," so ran the song;

"And peace unweaponed conquers every wrong."

"Mother," pleaded a polite little girl, holding up with graceful deprecation the hair ribbon that would fall off, "will you please pin this bow on once more with the greatest of pleasure?"

Newedd—What's wrong with this pie crust? It doesn't half cover the pie.

Mrs. Newedd—Why, dearest, I asked your mother all about how to make the mto suit you, and she said to make the crust very short.—Boston Transcript.

Pat had just arrived from the Emerald Isle, and he was feeling very hungry, as he had not eaten anything since 4 o'clock last evening, and it was now 8 o'clock in the morning. So he went into a restaurant close by and asked the waiter how much he would charge for breakfast.

"One shilling," replied the waiter.

"Well, how much will ye charge me for my dinner?" said Pat.

"One shilling and sixpence," replied the waiter.

"Well, what will ye charge me for my supper, then?"

"Sixpence," was the reply.

"Then if ye please, will ye give me my supper?" said Pat.—Pearson's Weekly.

"Even the honey we get is adulterated."

"Why mention that particularly?"

"Well, you'd hardly expect anyone in the bee-line to be crooked, you know."

"The judge has a manner strictly in keeping with his office."

"How do you mean?"

"It is sententious."

"There is something funny about that legislative bill."

"To be sure there is. Hasn't it got a joker in it?"

Her Rival

"What became of that talking machine you had?"

"Had to get rid of it; it made my wife jealous."

"Doc" is Some Hunter

We have always had a high opinion of "Doc" Copeland, sporting editor of The Herald, especially ever since he predicted the pennant winners last season, but we did not know that he was as equally proficient with the gun as with the ball bat until we had the privilege of accompanying him as his guest at a hunting party recently.

"Doc" is some crack shot, to use the expression. Given a repeating shotgun, a bunch of nitro shells and a pair of waders and he is perfectly at home. He rarely missed a shot and kept the rest of the party busy counting ducks as they fell.

Or when shooting grouse on the wing, he is a crack shot. At the end of the day's hunt, he was given credit for securing as many as the rest of the bunch together. And he kept the party in good humor all day long—we counted twenty-one original jokes during the day.
